OLIVIA CHENG WAS AT A GAS STATION IN RED DEER FEELING stressed and guilty, asking herself "What am I doing?" over and over again. It was 2005, an era of pre-social media surveillance, but she was paranoid that someone she knew would see her. For the third Wednesday in a row, she had called in sick to her job as a reporter for Global News Edmonton in order to drive to Calgary and audition for an acting job on AMC's Broken Trail, a TV miniseries being filmed in the area. →
